

Connecticut Maple Syrup Is the Best Tasting You'll Find Anywhere

It won't be long before plumes of steam and smoke will rise from evaporators in hundreds of sugarhouses all across Connecticut. This annual rite of spring is eagerly looked forward to by local sugarmakers and their many loyal customers.

The traditional maple sugaring season in Connecticut extends from early February until late March, depending greatly on the weather. Freezing nights and warm, sunny days are necessary to provide good sap yields.

Maple producers, including the ones listed in this brochure, welcome individuals and parents with children during the sugaring season. You may watch the whole process of how sap is gathered and boiled, and smell the hot steam rising off the evaporator.

Be sure to call the sugarhouse ahead of time to see if sap is being boiled into syrup and sold. Besides selling syrup during the sugaring season, this and other maple products may be purchased at many sugarhouses throughout the year.

The Maple Syrup Producers Association of Connecticut, Inc. holds informational meetings in January and November, and publishes a newsletter called "Drop in the Bucket." For more information contact: Chuck Drake, 28 Marshall Street, Windsor, CT 06095 Tel: 860-688-1718 or go to the Maple Syrup Producers Association of Connecticut website: www.ctmaple.org.

Maple Syrup Time In Connecticut

Sweet-smelling steam rising from a maple sugar house is truly one of the icons of agricultural life in Connecticut.

Visiting one of our state's sugar houses open to the public has become a seasonal tradition for so many families, who return home not only with some of the finest maple products in the world, but with great memories.

Maple sugaring season has been part of my life since I was a boy helping my father collect and boil sap from trees on our family's farm in Ashford.

As Agriculture Commisioner, I still draw on that experience and encourage everyone to taste it for themselves by stopping by a sugar house to watch the almost magical process that turns 40 gallons of clear, watery sap into a single gallon of liquid gold.

From early February through the end of March, you can find a working sugar house offering free tours in every corner of the state.

Many also stay open year-round for sales of syrup, maple candy, butter and other products.

I trust that this guide, provided by the department of Agriculture and the Maple Syrup Producers of Connecticut, will help you find a sugar house near you or as a great day-trip destination.

Please be sure to call ahead for days and hours of operation.

Supporting our Connecticut Grown producers also helps preserve the farms and working agricultural landscape that is not just a tradition, but a vital and growing part of our economy today.

Enjoy!
